ORTHOPEDECS

The first step is always the toughest,
but the results last a lifetime.

Musculoskeletal symptoms are the number two reason for physician visits.

American Academy of Orthopaedic Surgeons

The planning of an orthopedic facility requires specialized knowledge and can be the most challenging step in the project life cycle. Whether clients need an inpatient or outpatient orthopedic facility, Cogdell Spencer ERDMAN has the experience and expertise to enhance orthopedic diagnostics, treatment, rehabilitation and education.

We design/construct orthopedic facilities with all stakeholders in mind, promoting the efficient flow of services, physician and staff satisfaction, regulatory compliance and optimum return on investment. Space efficiency minimizes the amount of space built while maximizing its utilization. Operational efficiency seeks to maximize the orthopedic caregiver's ability to do their job while minimizing the necessary time required to perform each task. Our healing environments are designed to have a positive impact on patients, as well as staff, and the communities where they live.
